

COLLABORATE FORUM

29-30 APRIL 2014

Willow Creek Church in Chicago, IL

We are excited about the upcoming CAFO2014 in Chicago in early May! There is a great lineup of featured speakers and musicians, as well as rich content in workshops that cover all aspects of adoption, fostering and global orphan care.

We're writing you today to inform you about another opportunity immediately before CAFO2014 for international leaders. CAFO and World Without Orphans are hosting Collaborate, a two day forum designed for international representatives who are either leading national orphan care movements in their countries or desire to begin a national movement. We invite you to join other national leaders from around the world to share expertise, connections, best practices, and resources key to vibrant, locally-led orphan care movements.

The goals of the Collaborate forum are:

- To highlight case studies of key national movements and share their strategic expertise in developing movements and engaging local churches in orphan care.
- To understand best practices and the latest research to effectively serve their regional/national orphan care movements.
- To gather working groups to collaborate in developing regional and local strategies and ideas to expand their movements by engaging more churches.
- To continue development of attendees' leadership and management skills to better serve their emerging/growing movements.

We encourage you to join other orphan care leaders from around the world to gather together, learn with one another, and connect through the Collaborate forum, Tuesday April 29 and Wednesday April 30, 2014 at Willow Creek Church in Chicago, IL.

Please feel free to forward this message on to your international contacts. This is a great opportunity for on-the-ground leaders in every nation to learn, connect, and add their voice to the global orphan care movement. We would love to see dozens of countries represented at this forum!

We hope to see you there!
