

Casting vision...

Four years ago, I walked a property in Hawaii with my friend, Hal Jones, and listened as he shared dreams of rejuvenating a house with acreage that had long been neglected. He desired to turn it into a training center for Transformational Community Development. The building was run down. The land was overgrown, but he spoke of a farm which he envisioned where people could get hands on agricultural learning.

In October, it will be one year since he went to be with the Lord. His vision is now a reality, and this week I am facilitating training in a rehabilitated facility. People are and will come from around the world and go on to bring help and hope to the hidden and the hurting.

Mobilizing Millions...

This summer has brought havoc to our world. While we are amid a global pandemic, we hear of earthquakes, the overthrow of governments, and the persecution of believers. With all the chaos we see, why go to facilitate a training? At this time, world poverty has escalated like no other time in the past years due to the pandemic. Hal Jones' training center was borne for a time like this.

Hal had a vision for every unreached village and called us all to work together to bring Christ to a million villages. He championed million village challenge mobilization events, gathering leaders from as many as 50 organizations in strategic regions or countries. He took them to see a transformed model village with clean water, food security, small business, education for every child and an active and growing community of believers. On their last day, he gathered them by country or area, drew maps of their territory, and asked them to create a strategy to reach the country and to put on the map the names of specific villages they were committed to reach. I participated with him in many of these - Egypt, Jordan, Burkina Faso, Nigeria, Guatemala – and the result was national coalitions with national strategies to reach the village poor in their country.

Although times are difficult and the task before us is great, God calls us to go! Now more than ever, we press on to meet the Million Village Challenge, reaching a million villages with the gospel.
